Commitment to Increase Safety in Civil Aviation; Putting People First

Convening in Incheon, Republic of Korea, the International Federation of Air Line Pilots' Associations (IFALPA) reaffirmed the commitment of the global pilot community to the safety and sustainability of commercial aviation.

We stand firm in the belief that the safety of air travel hinges on two properly rested, fully qualified, and well-trained pilots on the flightdeck at all times.

The Federation is resolute in opposing Reduced Crew Operations (RCO), as it introduces unacceptable risks to safety. We call on decision-makers, government, regulators, airline management, and pilot associations to unite in safeguarding the highest standards of safety possible, and to continue to make the constant enhancement of safety our primary goal.

Operational efficiencies must never compromise safety. Safety is non-negotiable.
